Learn how it all began below!

Shrimp Baiting to Shrimp Festival How a Little Idea Went a Long Way

"In the mid 1980's, a group of shrimpers from Florida came to Yemassee. These men were using bait to catch shrimp, and kept their main ingredient a secret from the people in Yemassee. Now, baiting shrimp was not an unheard practice in Yemassee at Sloaman, were baiting shrimp at Riverbend. No one knew what they would pull up an empty net. The bait the Florida shrimpers would use caught a good many shrimp. A Yemassee man, James Polk, had a connection with the Florida Shrimpers, and he found out their secret ingredient. It was dog food. A few of the Yemassee men took the dog food idea and with the help of a stocking were armed to catch shrimp. When the men of Yemassee figured shrimping changed forever. If dog food caught quite a few shrimp, then how much could something higher in protein catch? They found fish meal. Menhaden Fish meal has sixty percent protein to the thirty percent found in dog food. The fish meal is then mixed with clay or mud, to anchor it, and formed into a patty to keep from rolling. These shrimpers were now catching thousands of pounds of shrimp a week. They were beginning to rival the amounts being caught by the Commercial Trawlers. Imagine being able to catch that much shrimp without any laws that limited what you could catch. Cane poles were used to mark the place where the bait had been thrown out. At one time, Harold Harman had three hundred poles lined down Wimbee Creek..."
