Our Microphones at Music to Go Mobile DJ:

We have 3 cordless microphones, a tethered microphone and a clip-on. We are happy to make your announcements for you or provide you with a microphone to say what you wish!

Why hire a DJ? What am I paying for anyway?

We would like to explain what happens behind the scenes at a DJ Business. Many people think the DJ packs up his equipment, plays for the amount of hours the customer requests and then packs up and leaves completing his job. It's not quite that way. At Music to Go Mobile DJ, it is important to us that we play the type of music you really enjoy and don't play what you don't like. That's why we say it's important to tell us what type of music you don't like and what you have seen other DJ's do at events that you don't want us to do at your event. We plan ahead and ask you as many questions as we can to personalize your event in every possible way. Each customer is different. One customer may like a certain song or group dance while another would not find it appropriate at all for their needs. Some customers want the DJ to be the MC at their event and keep the dance floor full. Other customers may simply want background music and the DJ to fade into the background.

A DJ can and often does put 8 hours or more work into a job that you have booked for 4 hours. This is especially true for Weddings. We've been working at Weddings and other events for over 20 years now!

The time invested in planning a Wedding looks something like the following:

Initial Customer Contact (15-30 minutes): We may discuss availability for the date they are requesting, fees, filling out a Wedding Planner Contract, and a description of where they can find information on certain things to help plan their wedding on our website.

Contact Information (15-30 minutes): After we receive the deposit and the first pages of a Wedding Planner, we check it for complete contact information. We appreciate it when the checks we receive have the event date in the bottom left corner. We look at the amount of time booked and where the event will be held. Then we contact the customers and let them know we received the deposit and ask them for any missing information on the Wedding Planner Contact page. It's important that we have the contact information for the customer, the club and the Wedding Coordinator.

Updates (15 minutes – 1 hour): In-between receiving the first pages of the Wedding Planner and the 1-hour consultation we answer questions over the telephone and e-mail about filling out the Wedding Planner and anything else the customers may need. We also keep their Wedding Planner updated with any additions they may need to make. It's a big help when customers back up their changes via e-mail with their names and event date in the subject line.

Consultation (1 hour): We review the full Wedding Planner in person at a meeting or over the telephone going through each stage of the Wedding and/or reception with the bride & groom. By this time we will have a good idea of the flow of events for the wedding and/or reception. We will also know what type of music the customer wants and doesn't want. It really helps to write down any questions you might have and bring them to this meeting. No questions are too small. We want the customer to leave this meeting being confident that their needs will be met.

Planning Music for Event (30 minutes to 2 hours): We review our music library to make sure we have the songs you requested. We pay for and download any songs that have been requested that we don't already have in our library. We also review any CDs the bride and groom have given us that they want played with special songs they've recorded. It takes about 80 songs for a 4-hour event.

Wedding Practice (45 minutes to 2 hours): When we are not already booked for another event and we are working the wedding, we like to meet customers and play music at their Wedding Practice. A dry run works wonderfully for the customers and the DJ. This way we can catch any needed changes ahead of time and the wedding flows more smoothly. This often takes a while to do with everyone arriving at different times especially if they aren't familiar with the area. It also takes time to load up the equipment and play at the practice and load it back into the van to take home. Even when we do not play at the Wedding Practice, we may still meet with the customers to look at where the event is going to be held if we haven't played there before. This is not necessary if we have played there before.

Final Review (30 minutes): About two weeks before the Wedding and/or Reception, we do a final wedding planner review. At this time there is also a final review of any e-mails or information taken during phone calls. If we need any more information at this point, we will contact the customers.

Average Event (4 or more hours): The DJ loads the equipment into the van and goes to the event. He works with the contact person or wedding coordinator throughout the event. He honors song requests as per instructions from the bride and groom or the wedding planner. He also makes any necessary announcements and provides cordless microphones to customers to make speeches or toasts. The DJ checks in with the bride & groom to make sure they were happy with the music before packing up to return home.

Follow Up (15 – 30 minutes): One to two weeks after each event, we review our 1-page customer questionnaire that is filled out and mailed or e-mailed back to us after each event. We check our progress on several points at this time. We are very grateful for all of the feedback we receive from our customers. They have had a tremendous effect on helping us be the best we can be!
